Senator Brands Gen. Zwicker Unfit For Army

By Roger D. Greene
Washington (AP) — Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) yesterday made public the transcript of a stormy closed-door hearing in which he told Brig. Gen. Ralph W. Zwicker that the Army's promotion and honorable discharge of an alleged Communist major was "a tremendous disgrace to the Army."

The transcript showed that McCarthy also accused Zwicker of "hemming and hawing" in reply to questions which he said "any five-year-old child could answer."

At other points in the interrogation the senator told the general he was not fit to wear his uniform and that "you should be removed from any command."

Zwicker, a much-decorated hero of World War Two who took part in the D-Day invasion of Normandy, is now the commanding officer at Camp Kilmer, N. J. Like McCarthy, he is a native of Wisconsin.

Along with the release of the transcript, McCarthy ordered a two-day postponement of the appearance of Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens, who had been invited to testify today at a nationally televised hearing before McCarthy's Senate Investigations subcommittee.

Returning to Washington after making a Philadelphia speech, McCarthy said last night he will hold a public hearing today to show "how the Army handled another known Communist" as the next move in his row with the Pentagon.

McCarthy refused to disclose the names of today's witnesses or to identify the alleged Communist whose case will be at issue. He called it "a case entirely separate and apart" from the affair in which Zwicker is involved.

The senator said he had ordered today's inquiry and a two-day delay in Stevens' own appearance before the subcommittee so that the Army secretary would not be "put in the embarrassing predicament of returning from abroad and testifying under oath until he knows the full picture here."

McCarthy apparently referred to Stevens' recent trip to the Far East. However, Stevens has been back in this country for several weeks.

"It's principally for Stevens' benefit," McCarthy told newsmen. "I don't want to see him make any great mistakes in this thing."

Sen. Potter (R-Mich.) said McCarthy postponed the session until Thursday at the request of Sen. Dirksen (R-Ill.), a subcommittee member, who has a previous engagement for today.

Two nationwide TV networks had arranged to broadcast the face-to-face meeting between McCarthy and Stevens climaxing their running feud over the Wisconsin senator's charges that the Army was attempting to "coddle and promote Communists."

Stevens in turn has accused McCarthy of humiliating U. S. Army officers with his investigative tactics and weakening the Army's prestige and morale by "unfair attacks."

Stevens said in a speech at Valley Forge, Pa., yesterday that "I intend to accept my responsibility as secretary of the Army, whatever the occasion, whether it be pleasant or unpleasant," and he declared:

"As part of that responsibility, I intend to support the loyal men and women of the Army in carrying out their duties. Certainly, those faithful Americans serving in the armed forces of their country merit that support and I would feel remiss and unloyal if I did not give it to my utmost."

Mitchell Declares Economic Picture To Decide Control Of Congress In November

Washington (AP) — Democratic National Chairman Stephen A. Mitchell said yesterday that control of Congress is going to be determined in November by whether voters feel they are better or worse off financially than a year ago.

Calling that the principal issue of the political campaign, Mitchell said that Democratic stock "is going up mighty fast" in nine Western states which he has just toured.

The states are Colorado, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Montana, Washington, Oregon and New Mexico, an area which will elect six senators and 25 House members in November. Reporting first to Western Democratic senators and representatives, Mitchell later told a news conference he had found widespread unemployment, tight credit, low farm prices and slackening business there.

Asserting that the people feel the Republicans are "not doing enough" to ward off a threatened economic recession, Mitchell said he thinks voters are turning to the Democrats on this issue.

"The principal issue is going to be: Am I better or worse off than I was a year ago," he said. "The chief complaint in the West is that the people feel the Republicans have put them at the second table."

Nehru Pleads For Indochina Cease-Fire But Bars India's Participation In Peace Move

New Delhi, India (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru extended an "earnest and humble plea" yesterday for a cease-fire in war-torn Indochina. But he made clear India will shoulder no responsibility for such a move.

Nehru told India's Parliament he thought the bloodshed should be halted until the big powers have a chance to solve the seven-year stalemate at Geneva April 26.

"It would seem a tremendous pity," Nehru declared, "that this terrible war should continue when a serious effort to meet and discuss this problem" is scheduled to take place between the Big Four and Red China.

"It is desirable I think, to have some kind of cease-fire without any party giving up its position," Nehru said.

Thus, he said, he addressed "my earnest and humble plea to both the great and little powers concerned to make an effort, though it is not our (India's) desire to interfere or shoulder any responsibility in this connection."

The French—who are leading the three associated Indochinese states in the fight against the Communist-led Vietminh—have expressed doubt there is enough time before the Geneva parley to work out a cease-fire. They also pointed out there is no clearly defined line along which to mark the combat zones—as in Korea.

The Associated Press reported Saturday in a United Nations dispatch that Nehru was planning a cease-fire call.

U. N. diplomats said the move apparently was being timed to get attention at the Geneva conference. That parley is being held mainly to deal with Korea, but it is also expected to range over Indochina and other Asian issues.

Commenting on the U. N. dispatch, diplomatic officials in Washington said they regarded any Indian peace-making role as impractical on the eve of the Geneva parley.

New York (AP) — Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.) said last night the United States should assure all Asian people that the Geneva conference will not try to settle their future without giving them any chance to be heard.

Polio Experts Report Gamma Globulin Use Has Shown No Beneficial Effects To Date

By Frank Carey
AP Science Reporter

Washington (AP) — A government-appointed committee of polio experts reported yesterday that "beneficial effects were not demonstrated" in the first wide use of gamma globulin to combat polio last summer.

But the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis immediately declared this finding did not rule out the possibility of employing G.G. effectively in "mass" injection programs in epidemic areas.

And the foundation reaffirmed previously announced plans to make 19 million dollars worth of the material (three million doses) available for use in this summer's polio "season."

The U. S. Public Health Service said a special 17-member committee, assigned to evaluate the ef-

"The power and agriculture problems are not being solved. There is a great deal of unemployment. Credit is tight and the people feel the Republican party is more interested in the East than the West and ready to let the West slide."

But Mitchell avoided predictions of the political outcome there. Mitchell said he feels President Eisenhower's popularity is declining because he said the average voter is beginning to identify Eisenhower much more closely with his party "and they know from previous experience what the Republicans are like."

Some Republicans have reproved the Democrats for what they said was an apparent effort to "talk the country into a depression," but Mitchell made it clear his party is not going to be silent about the economic issue.

817 Given Awards By Foundation

Valley Forge (AP) — A Republican senator, a prominent Democrat, the Boy Scouts of America and hundreds of school pupils were named winners of Freedom Foundation awards yesterday as the U. S. celebrated the birthday of George Washington, its first president.

The foundation annually honors individuals and organizations who "speak up for freedom."

All told, the foundation yesterday cited 817 individuals, groups and schools for "outstanding work for freedom" during 1953. But only the 28 top winners were honored at yesterday's ceremonies in a flag-draped barn in the area where Washington's tattered Revolutionary War army spent the bitter winter of 1776-77.

The awards were presented by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, head of Pennsylvania State University and brother of the President of the United States.

Dr. Eisenhower called the 1954 award "a positive response to the moral challenge of world Communism," and declared that "government under Communism sets out to abolish freedom, not nourish and strengthen it, as all government should."

Among those receiving top citations were U. S. Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) for a magazine article; James A. Farley, chairman of the board of the Coca-Cola Export Sales Co. and former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, for a public address; the Boy Scouts of America; Reader's Digest Magazine; and News Magazine of the Screen.

Effectiveness of G.G. as used last summer, had reported it could find no evidence that the blood derivatives had any effect in preventing or mitigating paralytic polio when used either (1) in the mass inoculation of children in epidemic areas or (2) in the inoculation of family and other close contacts of people already stricken with polio.

However, the health service's announcement carried this qualifying statement:

"Observation of the 23 communities in which mass inoculation of children was carried out did not provide enough information to permit the committee to conclude whether or not gamma globulin had an effect in preventing or alleviating the disease when used in this way, the committee said."

"Among the cities where gamma globulin was administered on a

Hoover Sees No Signs Of Depression

Washington (AP) — Former President Herbert Hoover said last night he had one depression named for him but he doesn't see signs of another "anywhere on the landscape at the present time."

The "present trouble," Hoover said, comes from a mixture of surplus production and "dehydrated optimism."

"You can have high confidence that this is only a passing dip, a slump, a readjustment, or a recession, not a great depression," he declared.

Hoover proposed a remedy along lines suggested by President Eisenhower: reducing taxes, if necessary, to increase the buying power of all the people so they can absorb the surplus production and jack up the standard of living another notch.

Hoover sized up the economic situation in an address at a banquet at which he received a good government award from the American Good Government Society. Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas was honored similarly.

The former President said that dips, recessions—whatever they are called—"come around inevitably about every five or seven years in the ebb and flow of a free economic system."

"I should be regarded as an expert on these subjects," he commented dryly.

"At least," he went on, "I was credited with having constructed one all by myself, the entire world-wide depression which lasted in the United States for 10 years from 1931 to 1941."

"I even received the honor of having that depression named after me by various political candidates."

"However, out of modesty, I must again state that this is an overdue honor and that I have never claimed such gigantic political, economic or intellectual power."

Out of ordeal by fire, Hoover said, he can say from expert experience that "the combustible materials are not hereabouts to construct another conflagration like that of the decade of the Thirties."

At that time, he said there existed a normal explosive from domestic over-optimism, in addition to two gigantic explosives in the forms of a total financial collapse in Europe and existence here of 51 weak, motley banking systems that could not take shocks.

"Without some combustibles like these," Hoover said, "dips, slumps, or recessions do not develop into great depressions. I do not see them anywhere on the landscape at the present time."

A-Bombs Delivered To Expanding RAF

London (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill's government said yesterday atom bombs "are now being delivered" to a rapidly expanding Royal Air Force.

An Air Ministry budget memorandum also disclosed that recent successful rocket tests on the Australian desert range "foreshadow the most important developments in air defense since the invention of radar."

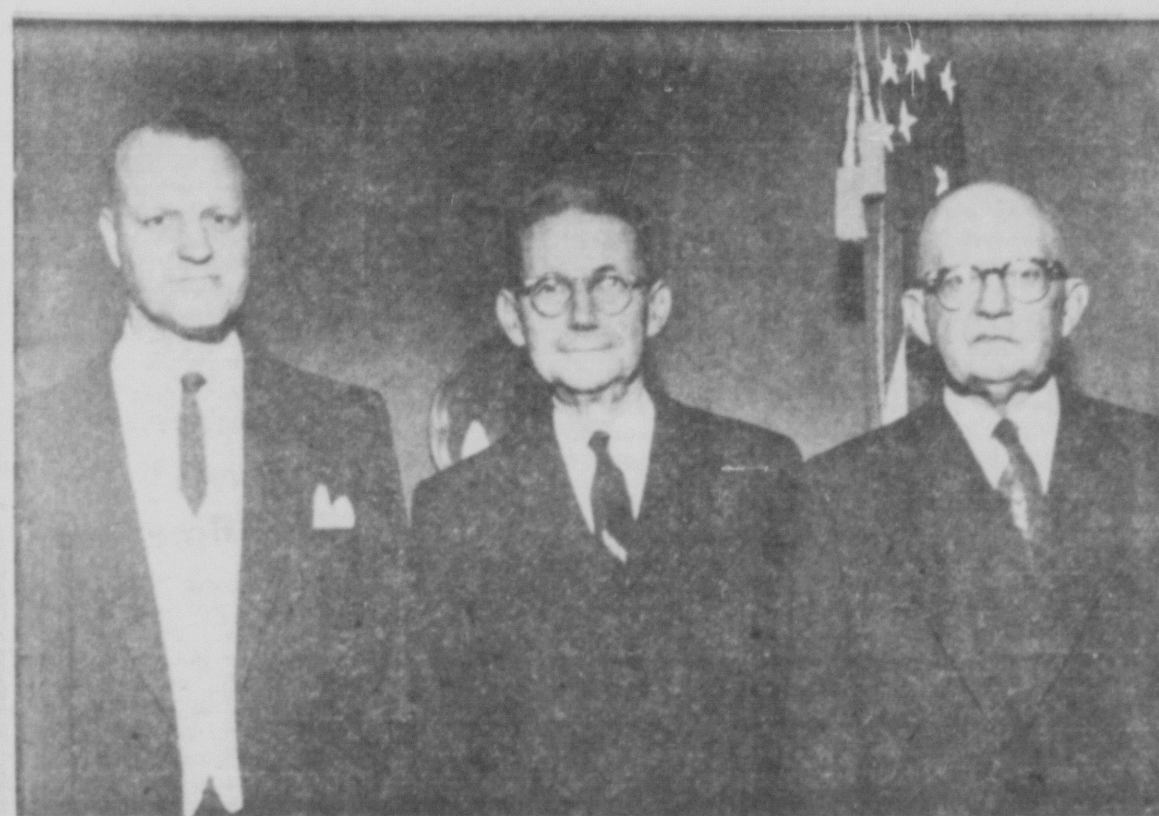

Parliament will be asked to approve an air force budget of $1,376,392,000 for the year beginning April 1. This is about $19,600,000 less than the previous budget.

McCarthy, Stevens Accept Medals At Two Ceremonies

Philadelphia (AP) — Sen. Joseph McCarthy (R-Wis.) and Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens at odds over the subpoenaing of armed service personnel—were 25 miles apart yesterday, accepting gold medals for contributions to the American way of life.

The Wisconsin senator accepted a gold medal from the Sons of the American Revolution at a luncheon in downtown Philadelphia for his "outstanding work in fighting Communism both in and out of this country."

Stevens accepted a gold medal from the Freedom Foundation on behalf of the armed services at historic Valley Forge, 25 miles outside Philadelphia and scene of the Revolutionary Army's struggle with the winter weather.

Frank B. Michaels Honored At Testimonial For Long Period Of Service, Exemplary Life

The riches of warm friendship, expressed in tribute after tribute from business associates, churchmen, Sunday school pupils, and service clubmen, were showered last night on Frank B. Michaels at a testimonial dinner in the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

And to all of this impressive, sincere display of affection and respect, Mr. Michaels responded with the thought that "what you have done for me in this hour is more than I shall ever be able to do for you."

Not even with the eloquence of a Cicero, he said, could he begin to express his feelings and he asked that God's blessing and richest Grace be with all who participated.

Actually, it was the Frank B. Michaels Sunday School Class of Grace Lutheran Church which started to have a testimonial for Mr. Michaels' 50th year as their teacher. Mere mention of the idea caused the tribute to spread into a county-wide affair which filled the hotel ballroom last night.

Reds Accept Terms They Had Rejected

Seoul, Tuesday (AP) — The U. S. diplomat who sat in on collapse of the preliminary peace talks in Korea said yesterday the Communists now have accepted nearly everything for the Geneva conference that they turned down at Panmunjom.

"The participants, the purposes and the place of the conference on Korea are precisely those we have spent day and night pressing the Communists to accept," said Kenneth Young before departing today for Washington.

At Peking, Red China voiced approval of the Geneva conference and gave Russia all the credit for arranging it at the Big Four meeting in Berlin. Red China will sit in on the Geneva conference opening April 26 along with all other countries who fought in Korea.

At Pyongyang, Communist North Korea echoed the sentiments of a Peking broadcast that the Geneva conference should serve to ease world tension.

Livengood Plans To Circulate Petitions For GOP Nomination

Harrisburg (AP) — William S. Livengood Jr., secretary of internal affairs, said yesterday he would circulate petitions for the Republican nomination for a fifth term—raising a possibility he might buck the organization state of candidates.

Livengood, a native of Somerset, told a reporter his petitions would be circulated but he refused to be pinned down on whether they would be filed.

"I will have an official announcement to make on March 15," Livengood said.

That is the last day to file nominating petitions for the May 18 primary. Petitions may be filed at the State Election Bureau starting today.

Livengood is winding up his fourth four-year term in the elective office, which now pays $15,000. The salary was raised from $10,000 at start of his present term.

Throughout those years, Livengood has figured in discussions among party leaders for the GOP nomination for governor, but has wound up being a candidate for re-election.

This year, however, Livengood was dropped when Republican party leaders got together on a statewide ticket headed by Lt. Gov. Lloyd H. Wood for governor. Mrs. Gwynne Dixon, Butler, was endorsed as the organization candidate for secretary of internal affairs.

Meantime, many prominent Republican leaders headed for Philadelphia to attend the annual meeting today of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Assn.

There was some speculation that party leaders might get together there on candidates to be backed for the state Superior Court.

Washington (AP) — Two persons closely associated with Pennsylvania Republican politics said yesterday it has been definitely decided that Franklin H. Lichtenwalter of Allentown will succeed M. Harvey Taylor as state Republican chairman.

The two spokesmen, asking not to be identified, said they expect Lt. Gov. Lloyd H. Wood to announce soon that he has selected Lichtenwalter to manage his gubernatorial campaign and that it has been "cleared" with Republican leaders that Lichtenwalter will also become state chairman.

Manufacturers' Assn., first president of Clearing House; president during reorganization of Glen Brook Country Club; treasurer of Monroe Historical Society and Pocono Mts. Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Michaels also holds the distinction of once turning down appointment as chief Burgess of East Stroudsburg. Judge Rhodes recalled.

All of these associations were matched by his association with Grace Lutheran Church and the Sunday school class bearing his name for more than 50 years.

Judge Rhodes noted humorously that he resigned as vice president of the bank, because there appeared to be no future with Frank Michaels as president. That resignation, of course, came when Judge Rhodes was named to the Superior Court in 1935.

Parley Won't Bring U. S. Recognition

By Warren Rogers Jr.

Washington (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles assured 15 key members of Congress yesterday the scheduled Asian peace conference will bring "no U. S. recognition of the Chinese Communist regime."

A State Department spokesman issued a formal statement to that effect several hours after a 90-minute conference between Dulles and the lawmakers at the State Department.

Most of the Republican and Democratic members of Congress came out of the meeting tight-lipped, brushing aside inquiries with a "no comment." Some of them said Dulles had asked them to let him do the talking.

The statement released later said Dulles "reported fully" on the Berlin Big Four foreign ministers' conference. It added:

"There was a general exchange of views. Mr. Dulles emphasized:

"One: That as far as Europe was concerned the Berlin conference had required Soviet Russia to show its hand, and it was still a hand which held fast to what it now had and sought to grasp some more."

"Two: That so far as Asia was concerned, there would be no U. S. recognition of the Chinese Communist regime. The United States had obtained Soviet Russia's formal agreement to this condition, so efforts to unify Korea and promote peace in Indochina could proceed without changing the U. S. basic position on China."

From the length of the meeting and some of the grim expressions which accompanied the "no comment" it seemed Dulles had been handling some hot questions from the lawmakers.

Nevertheless, there were signs that Dulles had made some headway against talk that he had moved toward diplomatic recognition of Red China by arranging an Asian peace conference with the Peiping regime for April 26 at Geneva, Switzerland.

Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.) last week called the Geneva conference a "very calculated risk." After yesterday's session at the State Department, Ferguson, chairman of the GOP Policy Committee in the Senate, was asked if he was satisfied no recognition of Red China was implied.

"I feel certain of that," he said. "I think the record in the press has indicated that already."

He apparently referred to publication of a paragraph in the foreign ministers' final communique, which said:

"It is understood that neither the invitation to nor the holding of the above mentioned (Geneva) conference shall be deemed to imply diplomatic recognition in any case where it has not already been accorded."

Dulles takes his case to the House Foreign Affairs Committee this afternoon.

Ailing Baby Taken From Hospital Bed

Steuensville, Ohio (AP) — A sick, 7-month-old girl, taken from her hospital bed by her father and his woman companion, was the object of a wide police search last night.

A criminal negligence warrant was issued against the father, Gerald E. Conrad, sought along with a woman police identified as Helen Elmore. The woman was not immediately charged.

Little Pamela Conrad was brought to Gill Hospital Saturday for treatment of pneumonia. Sunday, police said, Conrad and the Elmore woman visited the child and demanded her release.

When the nurse, Gloria Kotur, left the room to get a supervisor, the pair wrapped Pamela in a blanket, ran out of the hospital with her and drove away in a car bearing Maryland license plates. Patrolman John McDonald said.

Pamela was brought to the hospital by Mrs. Alice Ernest of Steuensville, who said she is a friend of Conrad.

Asst. Prosecutor Mele Vukelic said Mrs. Ernest told him Pamela's mother, Betty Lou Conrad, was in a prison on a bigamy conviction, either in Pennsylvania or West Virginia.

Extra-Curricular Activities Form Part Of Stroudsburg High's Education Program

A series of extra-curricular activity clubs form a part of the regular education system at Stroudsburg High School.

Fields of interest covered by these clubs range from wrestling to knitting. The school's student body has responded to the club program in an enthusiastic way as have members of the faculty, according to Alfred W. Munson, school principal.

The key to the SHS club set-up is in its overall purpose, Munson says. Part of this purpose is to give students who are genuinely interested in a field a chance to work in that field, even though they may not wish to take full-time instruction in it.

Included in this two-fold initial purpose is the chance the club program may give students who are not normally members of varsity or junior varsity sports teams to engage in organizational sports activity.

Membership in any of the clubs is voluntary for both student and faculty advisor, Munson says. Those students who do not participate in the club programs are allowed to schedule study hall during the period.

Club meetings are held once weekly, on Friday morning during the first period of the day.

The school neither emphasizes nor de-emphasizes the importance of its club program, Munson says. Faculty members and officials feel that the values of the club program will make themselves felt in the eventual development of each child who takes part.

The list of clubs in the school includes the following:

Wrestling Club, with members from grades seven through 12. Purpose of the club, according to Morse: "To teach fundamentals of wrestling, showing legal holds; encourage interest in the sport."

Future Farmers of America with membership from grades eight through 12, sponsored by Albert N. Cross. Purpose: "Development of agricultural leadership, cooperation and good citizenship."

Clothing Club, for girls from grades seven through 12. Purpose, according to sponsor Frances Felham: "To give girls additional opportunity for sewing and to acquaint them with other skills and varied methods of clothing work."

Golf Club for grades eight through 12. Sponsors: Jerry Stulgaitis and John Kupiec. Purpose: "To promote a love and understanding of golf to better fill a need for adult recreation."

Knitting Club for grades seven through 12 inclusive under sponsorship of Margaret T. Smith and Gertrude Welsh. Purpose: "To teach knitting as a practical hobby; to teach good knitting practices and to enjoy knitting in the company of others with similar tastes."

Future Teachers Club sponsored by Mahlon Serfass, for grades nine through 12 "to explore teaching as a profession with emphasis upon personal characteristics of good teachers (and teaching), teacher training, classroom procedures and problems."

Future Homemakers of America sponsored by Mary Hall for girls from grades nine through 12 "to promote interest in home economics and to work for good homes, families and community life."

Police Arrest Man On Two Motor Charges

A 28-year-old East Stroudsburg man was committed to Monroe County jail yesterday morning charged with two motor vehicle violations following his arrest Sunday by East Stroudsburg Police Chief Arthur Swink.

Glenwood Repsher, 287 Harris St., failed to post $500 bail at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Herbert Bonser, police said. He is held for further court action on taking an automobile without the owner's consent, and operating the car without an operator's or learner's permit.

Police said the car is owned by Ralph Richardson, Stroudsburg RD 3, and reported stolen by the owner Sunday.

Repsher told police he "borrowed" the car from Richardson, an acquaintance, about 4 a. m. Sunday. Following a trip into New Jersey he reportedly returned to East Stroudsburg at 3 p. m. Sunday and was arrested.

Police reported the car's motor was almost completely burned out following Repsher's trip.

Cooperatives Advised Of New Tax Filing Date

The Internal Revenue Service announced yesterday that the time for filing the exempt cooperative association income tax return, Form 990-C, and payment of any income tax due from an exempt farmers' cooperative marketing and purchasing association for a taxable year beginning in 1953 has been extended until the 15th day of the ninth month following the close of the taxable year.

This extension represents a change in the date for filing and payment contained in paragraph D on page 1 of the general instructions accompanying Form 990-C.

Cooperative associations concerned are advised, however, that interest at the rate of six per cent per annum will be assessed and collected on the amount determined as the tax from the original due date for payment of the tax, the 15th day of the third month following the close of the taxable year, until the date such tax is paid.

The payment of the tax, or any installment thereof, made in advance of the filing of the return will stay the accumulation of interest on the amount of such payment from the time it is paid.

Three Announce Candidacies For Legislature Nominations

John Shotwell Seeks Third House Term

John S. Shotwell of Effort announced last night he will seek his third term as assemblyman from Monroe County.

John S. Shotwell

A Republican, Shotwell first was elected to the General Assembly in 1950 and re-elected in 1952. Last year he sponsored or co-sponsored 15 bills, two of which, bearing his own signature were signed into law by Gov. John S. Fine.

Shotwell listed the two legislative acts which passed both the House and Senate as one appropriating $55,000 to East Stroudsburg State Teachers College and another to amend the motor vehicle law to make State auto licensees responsible financially for out-of-state accidents.

The act carries a reciprocal agreement with neighboring states, the assemblyman said, and relieves the operator of his license following arrest on the violation.

During the 1952 term Shotwell served on the welfare, game and forestry, labor relations and highway committees of the House. In his first year he was a committee member of labor relations, liquor control, game and forestry and second class cities.

Born in East Stroudsburg on March 2, 1900, a son of Jacob A. and Nellie (Fisher) Shotwell, he attended elementary and high schools there. Later he studied business administration and accounting at Pierce Business College and Temple University, Philadelphia.

During World War One, Shotwell served in France. He is a member of the American Legion Post 346, and Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 2540.

Shotwell is a member and trustee of St. John's Lutheran Church, Effort. He also is a director of the West End Lions Club. He owns and operates a lumber and building supply business in Effort.

Diesel Freight Engine Explodes

Port Allegany (AP)—A diesel locomotive unit exploded yesterday on a Pennsylvania Railroad freight train five miles south of here, starting a fire which caused damage estimated at between $100,000 and $150,000.

None of the train crew was injured, but two firemen from Port Allegany suffered minor burns. They were treated and released.

Sig Anderson, Port Allegany fire chief, said the blast occurred as the train was ascending a grade. The blast spread flames to a second diesel unit, but the freight cars were saved.

PRR officials ordered an investigation to determine the cause of the explosion.

From Bags To Riches--Paper Containers Unknown In 1850

By Grover Brinkman
Central Press Correspondent
Savannah, Ga. — Here, in the hazy sunshine of Dixieland, land of hushpuppies, pecans and family pride, is the world's largest paper bag plant.

Into it flow each year, some 1,000,000 cords of long fibered southern pine. Out of it flows paper bags in a long, continuous stream to the tune of 35 million bags each day. That is a train of 40 cars, filled to the top in a year, that means that each family in the United States uses 250 paper bags of one kind or another.

However, a hundred years ago, the paper bag was totally unknown. There wasn't a single one on any merchant's shelf!

The storekeepers of that day got lots of calls for groceries, meats, pots and pans, nails and flour, pins and potatoes. One general store usually sold all of these items—plus hundreds of others.

The problem was less of selling than of packaging. Everything came in bulk — flour, salt, sugar, beans and coffee. Doing out small quantities to the individual customer was a problem.

Some came to buy with "tote bags," some with market baskets. Others pleaded for a sheet

William Z. Scott, Lansford, Seeks GOP Nomination For Office Of State Senator

Lansford—William Z. Scott, Republican assemblyman from Carbon County disclosed to The Daily Record yesterday his intentions to seek the GOP nomination for State Senator, the office being vacated by Sen. Montgomery F. Crowe, after 16 years service.

Scott said the official announcement of his bid for office will be made Thursday, and will mean his stepping aside after serving four terms in the General Assembly.

An attorney with offices here, Scott made his political debut at the age of 30, winning election to the House of Representatives in 1946. He was re-elected in 1948, 1950 and again in 1952.

Sen. Crowe made public early this year he would not seek re-election to the 14th Senatorial District, leaving the post wide open for bids from prospective Republican leaders of Monroe, Carbon, Pike and Wayne Counties.

Scott's declaration marked the first announcement by a Republican, although there is some speculation in political circles that J. Russell Eshback, of Bushkill, a Pike County Commissioner and County GOP Chairman, may enter the race.

Sen. Crowe was elected first to the Senate in 1938; re-elected in 1942, 1946 and 1950.

Scott was born here on July 4, 1916, the son of Dr. William C. and Mellicie (Zimmerman) Scott. He was educated in the local schools, at Valley Forge Military Academy, Lafayette College and University of Pennsylvania Law School where he received his LL.B. degree.

A member of the Carbon County Bar Association, Scott is active in many county organizations. During World War Two he served with the U. S. Army Infantry as a captain in "Merrill's Marauders." He won the Purple Heart, Infantry Combatmen's Badge and Presidential Citation in the Burma campaign.

Community Pays Tribute To Michaels At Testimonial

and Mrs. Malachi Sloan, Dayton, O. residents and now of Dayton, O.

He read congratulatory messages from Clifford Gillam, Sen. M. F. Crowe, J. J. Newberry, Mr. and Mrs. Frank LeBar, the Gerald Avlons and the Melvin Ziegenfuss.

Ben Josephson, director of Camp Tamiment, said in his tribute to Mr. Michaels that of all the things which make a community great, its human fibre is the most important. Noting he'd met Mr. Michaels 22 years ago, Mr. Josephson said Mr. Michaels admirably represents that strength of the human fibre in this region.

H. G. Sanborn Jr. of Worthington Mover and a director of the bank, speaking as "a newcomer" to this region, said Mr. Michaels is respected by his bank colleagues at Stroudsburg Security Trust as a Christian gentleman who lives what he preaches; a competent banker and businessman who does all he can for his community; a man completely honorable, past and present, with an assured future.

Mr. Sanborn emphasized Mr. Michaels has been with the bank since 1909 and president since 1933. During that time vast changes have taken place in banking, but Mr. Michaels has never failed to note, keep pace with and evaluate these changes to be always in the forefront.

"He wears the 'new look' of business perfectly," said Mr. Sanborn. "He has helped us in our business and as newcomers we cannot take your 'present' for granted."

Explaining first that Rotary's motto is service above self, Jesse R. S. Flory, president of the Stroudsburg Club and Chief Burgess of East Stroudsburg, said that all the high principles and philosophies of Rotary are to be found in Frank Michaels. As such, he said, it was natural that he should be one of the charter and founding members.

Eltan Hall brought the felicitations of the Lions Club and expressed the thanks of the Frank B. Michaels Bible Class members to all those who aided in arranging the testimonial.

Dr. Malachi Sloan, Dayton, O. former East Stroudsburg resident and close associate of Mr. Michaels in Grace Lutheran Sunday school went behind the scenes a bit with a more intimate delineation of Mr. Michaels.

He explained that at 8 years of age, Mr. Michaels became the man of the house because his father was invalided. First a young farmer, but always with vision, he noted that Mr. Michaels moved on to be a teacher, then office holder and finally the banker, but not without many vicissitudes.

It is one thing to serve a business man years, but quite another to give 50 years volunteer service to a Sunday school, Dr. Sloan emphasized. That 50 years of service is additionally a monument to a great ability to meet all the changes of the passing of time, Dr. Sloan noted.

He said Mr. Michaels was 51 when he married, and called attention to Mrs. Weisman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michaels, and the Wiesmans' son.

"His love went beyond the normal, narrow field of his family," Dr. Sloan emphasized, "and that of course is the major attribute of a Christian. I'm better and the community is better because of Frank Michaels."

"His resistance to discouragement has been another great characteristic of his life and to those about him. This man and his ability to pray, not only in adversity, but regularly, makes him what he is—a great American Christian."

Dr. Sloan presented a leather bound copy of poems which Mr. Michaels has written over the years and which were obtained from his wife for printing into a single volume. Paper-bound volumes were given to those present.

Judge Rhodes wished Mr. and Mrs. Michaels Godspeed on their European vacation trip. "You have rendered great service to your community and your vacation is well-deserved."

Rev. William Wunder, pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, gave the invocation and benediction.

Van D. Yetter Candidate For Assembly Post

Van D. Yetter Jr., Democrat, of East Stroudsburg RD2, announced last night he will seek the Democratic nomination for the General Assembly from Monroe County.

Yetter campaigned in 1952 against incumbent Republican John Shotwell.

A native of Marshalls Creek, Yetter, 40, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Van D. Yetter Sr. He is the father of four children—two sons and two daughters. He is married to the former Katherine Froelich.

A member of Craig's Meadows Lutheran Church, Yetter is vice president of the church council. He also holds membership in all Masonic orders; is a member of Stroudsburg Rotary Club and Stroudsburg Eagles.

Yetter has served as supervisor of Smithfield Township for 12 years, and secretary of the board for the same period. He also has been Democratic committeeman in that district.

The Democratic aspirant operates a farm equipment business in Marshalls Creek.

Home Slightly Damaged By Earth Shift

Wilkes-Barre (AP)—One new and slight earth movement was detected yesterday in the area where an earth shift Sunday affected about 300 homes.

There was a slight upheaving in front of the home of Kain Jacobs, but the damage was slight.

Wilkes-Barre city hired an engineering firm to determine the cause. Examination will be made of mining sections under the affected area by John McCartney and Associates.

Glen Alden Coal Co., which has operations under the affected area disclaimed responsibility. M. K. Mellott and Co., public relations representatives for Glen Alden, advocated designation of an "impartial federal or state commission to determine the cause of the upward movement."

Gas and water service to the area was disrupted. Wilkes-Barre city police maintained constant vigil for further recessions.

Victims looked to insurance companies to bear some of the loss. Some persons have policies which cover loss from earthquakes.

There has been no official estimate by anyone of the total loss.

paste and the seams opened when it was put in use. So an attempt was made to overcome this problem by using plenty of paste.

Later Wollé received another communication from the same firm. "Consignment of bags received. Can't report on quality until spring. Every package frozen solid."

It is hard to believe now that it took years of exhausting missionary work to get the production of bags up to a thousand bags per day. Today, that many bags are produced by a single maker in a few seconds.

Today bags are made for every need, any place in the world, coffee bags, shopping bags, garbage liner bags, potato bags, cement bags—bags for fertilizer, sugar, flour chemicals, salt, rice, insecticides parts of various mechanical nature.

There are bags for icing and transporting freshly picked corn from fields to supermarkets, insulated bags for carrying home packages of ice cream not to mention an endless variety of corrugated containers, all stemming from the original idea of the paper bag.

You will have a hard time naming a single industry in the United States that does not use in some way, the paper bag or corrugated container.

The last thing anyone takes account of today are the bags or wrappings that come with the products we buy. However, if the housewife of a hundred years ago could come back and see today's markets and kitchens, no doubt her eyes would pop open in amazement.

If Mrs. America would be surprised, think of how old Francis Wollé, the Bethlehem schoolmaster would be affected if his ghost came wandering back through a modern bag making plant today. From a thousand bags a day to 35 million in one single plant alone! thingtp do. C

Kenneth Meixell Posts Bond In Assault-Battery Case; Neighbor Undergoes Surgery

Kenneth Meixell, of Stroud Township, is free on $1,000 bond on a charge of aggravated assault and battery against a neighbor, Paul Gallow, a peace justice said last night.

Gallow is at East Stroudsburg General Hospital, where he underwent surgery yesterday. The operation was to reduce a fractured elbow, said a hospital surgeon, who reported that Gallow had also suffered a scalp wound.

The patient was reported in "satisfactory condition" at the hospital.

According to Justice of the Peace William N. Walton, Stroudsburg, who issued the warrant, Gallow was injured in an argument Saturday afternoon just before he planned to drive to the General Hospital to pick up his wife and new baby.

The information sworn out by Gallow said that Meixell had a piece of pipe in his hand at the time, Justice Walton reported. Gallow told the justice he raised his arm to ward off a blow and that Meixell hit him with the pipe.

Gallow was taken to the hospital and admitted for treatment, while his wife and baby were discharged, said Justice Walton.

Meixell was arrested by Constable Russell Rinker of Stroudsburg, then released on bond. A date for the hearing will be set after Gallow is out of the hospital, Walton said.

Frank B. Michaels

What started as a testimonial from members of his Sunday school class turned out last night to be a mass tribute from the entire community for Frank B. Michaels, banker, churchman, clubman and civic leader.

Spread of the plan from an informal party marking 50 years teaching the Frank B. Michaels Sunday School Class at Grace Lutheran Church is ample testimony of the universal esteem in which Mr. Michaels is held in the Pocono Mountains region.

Here is a man who has served his community and his fellow citizens well in many fields. Mr. Michaels was an elementary school teacher eight years starting in 1892. He served as a Deputy Register and Recorder and later Register and Recorder in Monroe County, starting in 1900.

One of his former pastors, the Rev. J. S. Kistler, says he could "write a book telling about the faithful services which Mr. Michaels rendered to his church and his community."

Tributes to Frank B. Michaels last night by all facets of community life and endeavor demonstrated the impact this man has had on his community and his fellow citizens.

The Daily Record pays its sincere respects and full tribute to Mr. Michaels. May he long be with this community as an example for all to emulate and to continue his valued services to the region.

But Not the Housewife

The chorus of anguished wails coming from dairy state congressmen over Agriculture Secretary Benson's announcement of a cut in butter support prices will not be echoed by the millions of housewives who will benefit from the lower prices.

If the Benson plan goes through—and there is little chance that the farm bloc will make a serious effort to override Benson with congressional action—the consumer will get about an eight-cent-a-pound cut in butter prices in April. Then, perhaps, the farmer can stop unloading his butter on the government surplus market and get back into the competitive market with butter substitutes.

Benson's course is a courageous one. What he proposes to do is cut support from 90 per cent of parity—about 66 cents a pound—to 75 per cent. After stocking up with some 250 million pounds of butter that was bought with taxpayer money, Benson decided it was time to do something. No housewife will argue that point, and she will side firmly with him against the politicians who bend under the political pressure applied by blocs. He should remember that there are a lot of housewives, too, and that it was they who helped elect President Eisenhower.

The new program should make vast government purchases of butter and dairy products unnecessary. It might even put butter back into the market to an extent where the government will be able to unload so much of the surplus it has in storage houses around the country.

Benson is a man who has abiding faith in the American system of enterprise and its ability to walk without permanent price stilts. He is taking a daring course, with elections next November. But it is a necessary step, and one long overdue.

Any move toward restoration of fiscal sanity in Washington will cause pain to some segment of the people who have enjoyed years of guaranteed profit at the expense of the taxpayer, of whom each of them is one. But fiscal sanity is vital to all the people, and the Eisenhower administration is dedicated to that wholesome goal. This is but another small step in the right direction.

The Once Over

—by H. I. Phillips

Man Of The Years

George Washington, as ordinarily presented, seems a cold, rigid, elderly personage, a figure in marble, a character in a drama. It is hard to think of him with the warmth and closeness you associate with Lincoln. It's the fault of the historians and the story tellers. For Washington was what everybody likes—the man who can take a clobbering and triumph... the fighter who can take a nine count and get off the floor to deliver a kayo... the slow-ball pitcher who, with the bases full in the showdown, can whip over a blazing third strike.

Washington was Uncle Sam in a tri-cornered hat. He was Yankee Doodle going to town on a hunter bred for distance. He was the forward passer who could miss the target all afternoon and pinpoint the one who wins the game in the last three minutes of play. He was the clutch hitter, the winner "dropping out of the clouds," and the guy who was a triple threat even in the shadow of his own goal posts. George always looked more majestic slumped over a weary horse limping back from a dismal defeat than most generals look on a spirited charger galloping to report a famous victory. He was The Man of Distinctive Endurance, Master Fortitude, Old Man Patience and Fortitude.

Stories of his praying in the woods for God's guidance in battle have been assailed by professional debunkers. But there was a prayer in his bearing. There was a litany in his character. The never-told-a-lie legend may have been a Parson Weems invention, but the man blazed with truth and integrity and dependability. He belonged with great oaks, towering pines and redwoods rather than the cherry trees. George was no hacker of fruit orchard saplings and lawn shrubbery. To look at him was to cry, "Timber!" He was the underdog who got the last bite, the boy who kept cool on the burning deck, the slow starter who "made it in the stretch."

Can you remember away back when no comedian thought it was great advertising to let the nation in on all the cheaper phases of a rowdy past?... In current musicals we would give a lot more for less choreography and more laughs... Elmer Twitchee now takes coffee beans to have them retreated... The Big Three will find, after getting out of that meeting with Molotov, that a month on a revolving platform will seem comparatively restful... The best interpreter of Abe Lincoln in our book, and we have seen many, is Royal Dano, who looks, talks and acts like Abe... His work with Earl Hyman and Michael Kane in a Lincoln hour on TV's "Camera Three" was an inspiration.

Robert S. Allen Reports

Reed Would Cut Personal Income Taxes Five Per Cent

Washington. — There is very exciting tax saving news to report more than $4,000,000,000 worth!

That's the size of the eye-popping bonanza in tax cuts in the huge re-evaluation bill which the House Ways and Means Committee has been secretly drafting since early January and which is now set to be officially unveiled next week.

Representative Daniel Reed (R., N. Y.), Committee chairman and principal architect of the measure, has given this inside word to House Republican leaders.

He has told them the giant bill, numbering hundreds of pages, is nearly completed, and, barring a last-minute hitch, will be formally reported to the House in the hope of reaching final action there by March 20. The legislation then will go to the Senate Finance Committee which, probably, will not place it before the full Senate until after the Easter holiday.

The total of the tax cuts in the re-evaluation bill is conjectural. Reed estimates the amount at $3,500,000,000. Treasury officials, who are opposed to some of the slashes, calculate the figure as closer to $4,500,000,000. Which ever is nearer the mark, both sides agree on the following:

The 22 tax savings President Eisenhower recommended to Congress come to around $2,000,000,000. This is in addition to the $5,000,000,000 tax relief resulting from the January 1 expiration of the excess profits tax and the emergency 10 per cent increase in income tax. The President's program amounts to an over-all tax cut of upwards of $7,000,000,000.

Reed's re-evaluation bill adds another $1,500,000,000 to $2,500,000,000, and possibly even more, on top of the President's program. Two of the biggest of these added cuts are Republican-inspired. One, authored by Reed, will cost the Treasury an estimated $2,000,000,000 by reducing the corporation tax from 52 to 47 per cent, which the President vigorously opposed. The second cut, also disapproved by the Treasury, was sponsored by Representative Noah Mason (R., Ill.) and will total around $300,000,000 by giving all retired persons a $1,200 deduction on pension income.

But that still isn't all. "More Buying Power — "Uncle Dan," as Reed is affectionately known on Capitol Hill, has more tax cuts up his sleeve.

In fact, his Committee is already secretly working on a new bill. This second round of tax savings — "Uncle Dan's" personal economic recovery program; his private plan to stimulate business by a massive infusion of buying power through direct tax savings to consumers. His formula for doing that is as follows:

Reduce all excise taxes to a maximum of 10 per cent. Only exceptions to this across-the-board slash are tobacco, liquor and gasoline, whose rates he would retain at their present level. Estimated savings to consumers: $1,200,000,000.

Cut income taxes by another 5 per cent and thus put another $1,100,000,000 into taxpayers' pockets.

Reed's secret plan is known to House leaders. He has discussed it with them several times and has powerful backing among them. Speaker Joe Martin is making no bones that he favors drastic pruning of excise taxes as a business booster.

"I had intended to start work on the social security expansion measure before tackling a new tax bill," Reed told the GOP leaders, "but I've changed my mind. The social security program can wait until later in the session, but the economic situation isn't waiting for anyone. I've decided it's far more important to get busy on that right away. In fact, we'd be a lot better off now if the Administration had followed my advice and cut business and income taxes last year as I tried to do."

Bi-Partisan Job — That $1,200 deduction on retirement income was put through the Ways and Means Committee by a bi-partisan vote.

The 10 Democratic committee members voted solidly for it, while the 15 Republicans split 7 pro and 8 against. Following is the roll call on this secret 17 to 8 ballot:

For the deduction: Democratic Representatives Jere Cooper, Tenn., John Dingell, Mich., Wilber Mills, Ark., Noble Gregory, Ky., A. Sidney Camp, Ga., Alvin Ford, R. L. Herman Eberhart, Pa., Cecil King, Calif., Thomas O'Brien, Ill., Hale Boggs, La.

Republican Representatives: Thomas Jenkins, O., Noah Mason, Ill., Thomas Martin, Ia., Hal Holmes, Wash., Howard Baker, Tenn., James Utt, Calif., Victor Knox, Mich.

Against the cut: Republican Representatives Reed, N. Y., Richard Simpson, Pa., Robert Kean, N. J., John Byrne, Wis., Angier Goodwin, Mass., Antoni Sadlaci, Conn., Carl Curtis, Neb., Thomas Curtis, Mo.

A sharp wrangle preceded this showdown ballot. Chairman Reed objected to the proposal on the ground it didn't belong in a re-evaluation bill.

"Are we to understand," demanded Representative Eberhart, "that because this would provide some tax relief for retired workers and other pensioners it shouldn't be included in this legislation?"

"This bill is full of staggering losses," snorted Representative Dingell. "But most of them are in the interest of the wealthy and business. I guess that's what makes the difference where you people are concerned."

George Sokolsky Says...

How Many Times Has Any Questioning Organization Asked You A Question?

Having an allergy for questionnaires, I picked up one to which the Post Office Department makes reference. Apparently the Wengel Service Corporation of Princeton, New Jersey, asked the questions and got the answers.

Princeton is becoming the headquarters for all this question and answer business. The question is: "Do you think the Post Office Department ought to take in enough money from postage to pay all its costs, or is it all right if it doesn't take in enough to pay all its costs?"

The only sensible answer to the first part of the question is, yes. Nobody could give any other answer. Of course, the Post Office should take in as much money as it can and every American would say, Amen. Nothing in this question says anything about how it should be done, by eliminating inefficiencies, by improving the service, by cutting out bad bookkeeping which loads expenses on the Post Office and that should go to other departments. Nothing is said about anything, except, do the citizens want the Post Office to stop losing money?

The second part of the question is really silly. It reads: "... is it all right if it doesn't take in enough to pay all its costs?"

It is a kind of quarrelsome question: If you don't want me to make money, what do you want me to do? It is a queer sort of question which nobody can really answer, although 14 per cent did say that it did not matter much to them one way or the other. It is a little hard to convince some of our citizens that any branch of our government ought to pay its way. After all, nobody knows offhand of any department that does.

But to get back to questionnaires, this one is so loaded in one direction that it is like a Soviet election. The vote is Da under any circumstances. Precisely how do you say No? to the above question the way it is put.

The statisticians report that 78 per cent of those who were asked questions replied, "Ought to take in enough." How many were asked? It says that they were in 200 cities and towns as well as in all 48 states and the District of Columbia. But how many were sampled? Kinsey reached absolutely conclusive beyond doubt conclusions by sampling 5,510 women out of a nation of 160,000,000 persons. Kinsey has indicated a new morality, a new family system based on this tiny sample. What sample did the Wengel Service Corporation of Princeton, New Jersey, use to decide that most Americans want the Post Office to raise its rates because it "ought to take in enough money from postage to pay all its costs?"

Dir the questioner present the questioned with any kind of a plan for making the Post Office self-supporting? Was any explanation offered as to the distribution of increases of postal rates?

Or did the questioner go boldly up to the proverbial man on the street and say:

"Buddy, I want to ask you a question."

"Who are you?" asked John Citizen.

"Oh! I'm just a question man, working out of Princeton, New Jersey. We go around asking questions. I'm supposed to pick out a man around 40, married, works in a bank, for an insurance company or is a junior executive. You look that kind. Are you?"

"How did you guess?" John Citizen says in surprise.

"Well, it's like this. These days everybody wears white shirts, so that doesn't help much. But you wear a hat. So that proves you're through with high school and junior college and are probably married. It looks like a Homburg, which only a junior executive or a junior banker would wear—the bosses no longer giving a damn what they look like. So I pick on you. Do you mind?"

"Ahem!" says John Citizen, looking important. "Ask your question."

So the questioner asks the aforesaid question herewith already quoted and John Citizen answers:

"Naturally, as a businessman I am all for business methods. Naturally, any business must pay its own way. The Post Office is a business, isn't it?"

At this point, the questioner gently fades away. He has his answer.

Just ask yourself: How many times in your life has any questioning organization been around to ask you a question?

Charles A. Lindbergh has been nominated a brigadier general of the Air Force Reserve by President Eisenhower. The Lone Eagle, however, has had star billing long before that.

That recent heat wave which swept most of the U. S., may have been unreasonable but, to us, anyway, it certainly wasn't unreasonable.

Meanwhile, Norway has been swept by a sub-zero cold wave. Apparently the sun isn't shining in the Land of the Midnight Sun.

President Eisenhower recently went to Georgia—not to play golf as usual but to go quail hunting. For like going after birds he has, apparently, become a habit.

Looking At Life

—by Erich Brandeis

Somehow I can't help thinking that all this talk about Russia having great stockpiles of atomic, hydrogen and cobalt bombs, about their hundreds of submarines and millions and millions of well-equipped men under arms is a colossal bluff and a big swindle.

We know that the Russians claim to have invented everything from the electric lamp to radio and television. We know that one of their greatest inventions is the big lie. So how do we know that all that stuff about their enormous military power is not just a lot of claptrap?

Their latest "invention" is a "sleep machine," and the Red radio has announced that it would go into production soon.

According to the announcement the machine gives out a "faint rhythmic current" which brings on deep sleep within a minute. It will be used to "cure nervous disorders and soothe the central nervous system."

I was under the impression that the Reds have had a sleep-producing machine for many years—a plain, ordinary gun with which they put dissenters to eternal sleep.

Naturally, this is not meant to advise anyone to disregard the Red menace, even if it is only a talking menace. Talkers often talk themselves into action—just to satisfy their egomania—and thus can become very dangerous.

But it seems to me that the Soviet "ruling circles" have now been talking and talking for years without doing anything. If someone keeps hollering "wolf" every day, and day after day, one is very apt to disregard a REAL wolf when he comes and he MAY come. So, naturally we have to be on the alert and have the rifle handy.

A dispatch from Berlin said that the air in the Big 4 conference got so thick one day—probably from the fumes of the Russian cigarettes—that the Reds called a recess to clear the chamber.

A Russian spokesman told newsmen, "When the atmosphere became more clear and it was possible to see each other, Mr. Molotov took the floor."

Perhaps that was symbolic, don't you think?

A very good example of Russian progress and achievement was the Soviet-produced automobile exhibited at the International Motor Sports Show in New York.

The car had been smuggled out of Russia by a wealthy Californian. It was a 1952 model of the "Pobeda," or Russian people's car. "Pobeda," by the way, is Russian for "Victory."

The car had all the features of a cheap American automobile of 1935, but sells in Russia for the equivalent of about $3,500.

The Russians claim a possible speed of 70 miles per hour for it, but a man who drove it said he couldn't get anywhere near that out of it.

Its serial number was 6500, but according to records published in Germany, the total production of Pobedas for 1952 was under 2,000.

The body style, the instrument panel, the engine, the hood were imitations of our early American cars. The tires were of cheap synthetic rubber and the one concession to modernity was a sponge rubber sheet under the floor—to keep the cold out. There was no heater in this late model Pobeda.

I don't know, of course, how right I am about my suspicion as to Russia's boasts and threats. Maybe they are fooling us this time by NOT lying.

Brucellosis Test Program Meets Success

By Richard L. Graves
Harrisburg (AP) — Pennsylvania's brucellosis program is making progress despite restricted federal indemnity funds, the state Brucellosis Committee will be told at its fifth annual meeting here next week.

Dr. H. A. Milo, chief of the state Agriculture Department's Animal Industry Bureau, reports that of the commonwealth's 67 counties, 25 are certified as free of the cattle disease, which causes undulant fever in humans. Nine other counties have been completely tested and an additional 22 partially tested.

Delays were encountered in carrying out the program when the U. S. Government last July 1 chopped indemnity payments for animals destroyed in the brucellosis program from $25 to $9 for grade animals and from $50 to $18 for registered stock.

The state pays indemnities up to $32.50 for grade animals and up to $50 for registered cattle.

At the state Brucellosis Committee meeting, one representative from each county Brucellosis Committee will review the progress of the eradication program and pass on resolutions presented at district meetings.

An executive committee appointed by the state group meets with Agriculture Department officials to work out means of improving the program.

Meanwhile, staunch supporters of the eradication plan cite it as one means of getting dairymen to reduce their herds in view of the outlook for dairy products in the next year and recent government activity cutting milk subsidies. Farmers will be more inclined to weed out infected or positive testing cows as a means of reducing their herd.

Milo reported that comparatively few cows that were vaccinated against brucellosis as calves have turned out as positive reactors to the disease, which means they aren't likely to ever get it.

In 1953, Milo noted, a total of 151,292 calves were vaccinated — more than a fifth of all the animals treated since the program was inaugurated before World War II. The figure marked an increase of more than 15,000 animals vaccinated over 1952.

Predictions were that farmers, in cutting their herds to meet declining demands for milk, would make great progress in 1954 toward stamping out the disease.

The state Farm Show Commission meets March 3 to take under consideration reports and recommendations of the state Farm Show Committee, which meets the night of March 2. The committee, made up of three delegates from each of 50 farm organizations and allied groups will review the 1954 show. Specific recommendations by the committee are expected to include accommodations, exhibits, competitions and suggestions for improvement.

The 9-member Farm Show Commission, including Gov. John S. Fine and Agriculture Secretary Miles Horst, acts on the recommendations.

The Northeastern Poultry Producers Council declares that poultrymen "face a real problem in the coming year or two in possible overproduction."

The council attributes the danger to the fact that the poultry industry enjoyed good profits compared to other agricultural industries in the last year, which will attract newcomers to the poultry field.

At the same time, the council says, the diversion of agriculture from restricted crops under the production control programs will force many farmers into uncontrolled products — notably poultry production.

Poultry flocks are expanding, meanwhile, especially in the egg-laying breeds of chickens. In the broiler chicken industry the total birds on farms is about 10 per cent ahead of the same period last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Robert Oney

Miss Jacqueline Kresge Marries Thomas Robert Oney

Miss Jacqueline Yvonne Kresge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Kresge Sr., of 93 N. Second St., Stroudsburg, became the bride of Thomas Robert Oney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Oney, of Stroudsburg RD 3, at the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church on Sunday afternoon at 2.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Harold C. Eaton, pastor of the church, in the presence of many relatives and friends. The altar was decorated with two baskets of white carnations and two baskets of white gladioli.

Ernest Michelfelder, organist, played suitable organ music before and during the ceremony. Louis Tyreman was soloist. He sang "Because," "I Love You Truly," and during the ceremony, "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, William H. Kresge Jr., wore a white satin gown with a sweetheart neckline and a turned-back collar. Just Between Us

Is it our age, do you suppose, or is it true that holidays aren't as exciting as they used to be? George Washington's birthday, for instance. Certainly there used to be more than one flag out between the borough line and the bridge, and more than two flags on Washington Street.

Why, the little holes are still in the sidewalks where everybody along Washington and Main Streets put their flags of a holiday.

And didn't we used to get out of school early on Washington's Birthday, and didn't we have cherry pie and say Washington "pieces"? Well, maybe some people still do, but not the ones I came in contact with yesterday.

The only things that marked it as a holiday at all were the facts that you didn't get any mail, and the banks weren't open, nor the chain stores. Most people even played it safe by putting money in the parking meters, because maybe a holiday that isn't a holiday doesn't count.

It's too bad—particularly about the flags. They reminded you, if nothing else did, that it was Washington's Birthday, and with bright flags waving at you from every side, you had to think about this country and its origins.

Maybe the failure of the professional flag-wavers to live up to their noble sentiments has made us wary of all display of national sentiment. But it is rather a pity. It's still a beautiful flag.

Music Parents Set Tag Day For Uniforms

The new band uniforms for the Stroudsburg High School band have arrived, and the Music Parents met last night to consider ways of raising the balance due on them before May 1.

They still need to raise $263.83, and voted to have a tag day on April 10 when they hope to raise the full amount due. Plans for a cakewalk were discarded because of the lack of an open date in the school calendar before the due date.

Mrs. T. I. Metzgar, vice president, presided at the meeting which was held at the school. It was announced that the chorus concert would be held April 23 and the band concert on April 23.

WSCS Hears Recordings Of Korean Mission

What one man with one Bible can accomplish in a war-torn country was demonstrated through the tape-recorded talk of the Rev. Harold Voelkel from Korea which was presented at the meeting of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church at their February meeting.

Rev. Alex Crossan, pastor of the Middle Smithfield Presbyterian Church, played the recordings, which told of the regular services which the Korean missionary gave for 150,000 prisoners of war, of the 3,800 in Bible Schools and the 642 students preparing for the ministry.

Mrs. T. E. Terrill, vice president, presided at the meeting with Mrs. Kenneth Stine and Mrs. Maude Stem leading the opening devotions and Mrs. Hilliard and Mrs. Mary Kistler reporting during the business meeting. Attracting much interest was a linen damask tablecloth on which was depicted the life of Christ with The Last Supper in the center. The tablecloth is the prized possession of Mrs. Wilbur Shearer, whose great great grandmother brought it to this country from Germany more than 150 years ago.

THE

SHOPPER

Adelaide Garis remembers well her first "store bought" coat and can see, just as though it were yesterday, the way Wyckoff's looked on that long ago buying trip. A visit to town by horse and carriage was a great event when she was a little girl, and something a child awaited eagerly the entire year, along with such other activities as the annual Sunday School picnic and the church festival.

"I remember how excited my sister and I were," Addie says, "and I can still picture that coat. It was made on perfectly straight lines of some tan material, and had a turned back collar and cuffs edged with brown velvet." She paused smiling, to reflect upon this past elegance, while I tried to visualize her as she was then, a child of four or so with dark brown eyes and heavy brown brows.

Those brows were the pride of Addie's life. They were thick and heavy with a sheen that came from long brushing. "Mother took wonderful care of our hair," Addie explains, "and I never knew what heartbreak was until they insisted upon cutting mine when I was nine. I'd had scarlet fever very bad, and my hair began falling out by the handfuls. Finally only one spindly braid as thick as my little finger remained, and the doctor thought it best to clip me. I cried and soiled, and they finally postponed it until after Children's Day, but then I was bobbed. It was plenty short too. I knew then what it was to be heartick."

Adelaide was born in Flatbrookville, N. J., to Charles Garis, a carpenter, and his wife, the former Ida Hornbeck of Montague, N. J. As an infant she was taken to a new residence on the Pennsylvania side of the river near the present site of Camp Girard. When she was four, the family moved once again, onto a farm in Cherry Valley. "I loved it," Addie says, "and believe it or not I was a terrible tomboy." But there were chores too. Children were not handed their every request on a silver platter in those days, even the tiniest soon learning that family happiness was a matter of mutual love and sacrifice. "It was better that way too," Addie reflects, "but we were kept busy. There were eggs to be gathered, chickens to be fed, milking to be done, and milk to be taken to the creamery. We were happy though, and I remember what pride I took in my horse and carriage. I'd love having it today, even though we used it mainly for driving to church or the Sunday School outings."

Church has always played a very important part in Adelaide Garis's life. Since coming to Stroudsburg in her youth, she has been a member of the Zion Reformed Church where, for 25 years, she served as president of the Marie Noss Circle, now the Women's Guild. It was through her Christian Endeavor work that she became friendly with the late Miriam Cyphers, who hired her as an assistant in the children's department. That was 28 years ago. Some time later, Addie was transferred from the selling floor to the office, where she is in charge of the daily sales reports.

The cropping of Adelaide's locks at nine was the only time in her life her hair was cut. Today she wears it piled high upon her head like a silver crown. Her tastes in food and clothing lean toward simplicity, and, while she loves red hats, she usually wears dresses of unrelieved black or navy. A black onyx and diamond ring is one of her favorite ornaments, as is the handpainted pin of water lily design once brought back from a vacation in Atlantic City. Addie crochets, sews, and raises flowers. Scarlet sage and asters are two most popular with her.

If you ask her friends about Adelaide, they'll speak of her great devotion to her family — the long and patient care given her invalid father and brothers, since dead, and the companionship she even now gives her 88 year old mother. "She would have been a wonderful nurse," you are told. For my money, she's a pretty wonderful person.

Anthracite Leaders Feel Industry Will Regain Its Top Position In Few Years

By Bill Loftus

Philadelphia, CP. Since 1946 the production of anthracite in northeastern Pennsylvania has been sliced in half.

The cut in production has resulted in layoffs, reduced working days and thinner pay envelopes, and a full-fledged unemployment crisis in the one-time hard-coal capital of the world.

To date, nothing has replaced the vacuum caused by the reduction in anthracite production.

That seems to be the major problem facing a group of leaders who have voluntarily undertaken the task of combing the country for suggestions and answers to their crisis.

Talks with anthracite company heads, union leaders and leaders of the anthracite institute, the industry's research arm, leads to this background, conclusion and forecast.

Since the end of World War II oil and gas have made terrific inroads in the home heating fuel field once ruled by anthracite. This has been one of the two major factors causing a decline in production. The other has been unusually warm winters which has reduced the need for coal.

In the meantime, inflation has raised the cost of producing coal by boosting wages and the cost of machinery and materials needed in the mining process. These costs have forced the operators to boost their prices to an almost unfavorable competitive level in relation to their chief rivals.

But there is a heartening note. The industry has succeeded in boosting its sale of anthracite to industry to the highest records ever. And automatic machinery for the burning of coal in the home has been developed to a point where Frank Earnest, president of the Anthracite Institute says:

"We can now boast that anthracite burns longer, is cheaper in the long run and cleaner than its competitors."

To these leaders the next three or four years are the most important. They feel that in the long run the industry with proportionately more reserve supplies on hand than either gas or oil will regain its top position.

But the group feels the next three or four years must be used to stop the downturn in production; the rise in layoffs and the drifting-off of younger miners to other industries with steadier working schedules; the shutdown of mines; and to reduce the cost of production.

State mines secretary W. J. Clements recently proposed a mine sealing program with the federal

That would help, these leaders point out, but the vacuum needs to be filled by either reviving anthracite or bringing in some other major industry.

Life of Riley

By JIM RILEY
Sports Editor

East Stroudsburg State Teachers College enjoyed one of its best weekends of the current athletic campaign, when four of five teams came through with victories last Saturday. The wrestling squad dropped an 18-13 decision to Wilkes College, at Wilkes, while all four contingents that saw action on the home front came through with victories. The girls' basketball squad, men's swimming team and the junior varsity and varsity cage contingent all picked up favorable notes.

Probably the standout attraction from the standpoint of performance was ESSTC's 49-35 victory over Brooklyn Poly in swimming. John Saylor and Frank Krystyniak, both freshmen, put on record performances to the delight of one of the largest crowds to ever witness a swimming meet in the Normal Hill pool. Saylor, a graduate of Allentown High, set two new pool records, in the 50-yard freestyle and the 200-yard backstroke. Krystyniak set a new mark in the 150-yard individual medley.

Saylor is no stranger to the Normal Hill pool, even though he is a freshman at ESSTC. John has been in action in the local pool on two previous occasions as a member of the Allentown tank squad. According to the latest list of nine pool marks at the local college, the Warriors hold three, Cortland Teachers four and Long Island University two. Coach Frank Grimm was thrown into the water by his jubilant pupils following Saturday's meet.

East Stroudsburg demonstrated some solid comeback power in basketball for the first time this season, at least at home, when the varsity Warriors outlasted Trenton, 85-83. The charges of Coach Chris Denis blew a 14-point lead sky high, but came back in the overtime session to save the day. It appeared as if Ray Kaseman was on the way to some sort of a court record when the little pivot star accounted for 11 points in the first quarter, only to be held to 75 the remainder of the contest. Trenton overplayed the center to make Ray's pivot shots doubly during the last three quarters.

Kaseman missed his initial field goal attempt in the first period, but came back to cash in on the next five attempts, before missing for the second time. Trenton connected on its first three shots at the basket from the field, then ran on four for five and five for seven attempts. Tom Smith, Trenton's Negro center, gave the outstanding demonstration of rebounding witnessed by this scribe on the Normal Hill court this season. Fred Wetzel, Trenton's diminutive forward, also put on an outstanding demonstration, of both shooting and floor play. He wound up the contest with 36 points.

Ed "Jake" Palmer, captain of the ESSTC cagers who is now doing his student teaching at Pocono High, played the finest game of his career while seeing service in spots throughout the contest. Palmer came up with 11 points and looked particularly good in the early going. Nick Gatto also looked good for the Warriors, as did Jack Newell, the set shot artist who first made his mark in basketball at Stroudsburg High school. Among the small crowd at Saturday night's tussle was Bill Schmidt and Joe Maioriello, former basketball and tennis stars at ESSTC.

Maioriello also played soccer. Schmidt, one of the top scorers in the history of basketball on Normal Hill, is now studying at the University of Pennsylvania. A victory over Hunter College is the big prize for ESSTC's feminine basketball stars and the Normal Hill girls took home all the marbles on Saturday afternoon. The Warriors scored a 52-45 victory over the New Yorkers and at one time had a lead of 15 points. Hunter, showing its true merit, rallied to within four points of the home team in the last quarter, but could never turn the tide of battle.

The win over Hunter was the fourth of the current campaign for the Warriors, who have yet to taste defeat. Coach Genevieve Zimbar's lassies have four games remaining, including extremely tough battles against Temple, Ursinus and Elizabethtown College. But, if the Normal Hill girls continue to show the same ability as demonstrated against Hunter, this could be the season for a perfect record. Although four events were held in the Normal Hill gym on Saturday, the time schedule was followed almost perfectly. The ESSTC junior varsity cagers beat Trenton's yearlings 43-35.

Weston Rallies To Gain Third Verdict Over Poconos

Second Half Play Decides Issue, 72-60

Stroudsburg's Poconos failed for the third time this year against Weston A. C., as the top team in the Blue Mountain Basketball League scored a 72-60 decision over the home team on the Stroudsburg High court last night.

Weston was forced to the limit and had to come up with its winning spurt in the last quarter to insure victory number 17. The only loss suffered by Weston this season was a forfeit affair to the same Poconos.

Al Adelmann, playing one of his finest contests of the campaign, did the bulk of the work during the early portion of the ball game as the Poconos kept on even terms with the high ranking quintet from Easton.

Weston outlasted the host aggregation in the opening quarter, 18-17, but the Poconos, with Adelmann, Henry "Hank" Stetler and Harvey "Hotsey" Bergman leading the way, came back to hold a 16-15 advantage in the second round.

The arch foes were knotted at 33-33 at halftime.

The visiting quintet went into a three-point lead at the three-quarter mark, 43-46, with a 16-13 edge in the third quarter. Weston made certain of victory by dominating the last 10 minutes of play, 23-14.

Adelmann accounted for 20 points in a losing cause, coming up with seven field goals and six shots from the foul line.

Misero and Werner paced the Weston offense with 24 and 18 points respectively.

Worthington Mower won over Frank's Barbers in the preliminary battle, 55-51.

Lineups follow:

Eastburg Fire Fighters Win

East Stroudsburg Firemen evened their bowling series with the Stroudsburg Firemen on Sunday at Harmon's Recreation by a margin of eight pins. The East Stroudsburg keggers came up with a 4781 total, as compared to a final mark of 4773 for Stroudsburg.

The Stroudsburg team won the initial meeting of the two teams.

Next

A third match between the two fire departments will be held at Harmon's Recreation on Sunday, March 21.

Scores follow:

Team	W	L	Pct.	G.R.
East Stroudsburg	15	5	.750	3
Stroudsburg	13	5	.722	4

Although four events were held in the Normal Hill gym on Saturday, the time schedule was followed almost perfectly. The ESSTC junior varsity cagers beat Trenton's yearlings 43-35.

ESSTC's wrestling loss to Wilkes was even closer than the 18-13 score would indicate. One break down the line could have meant the difference. ESSTC will be represented in the state wrestling meet at Lock Haven on Friday and Saturday, March 5 and 6, although it was previously announced that they would be unable to compete because of a date with Brooklyn Poly. The Brooklyn Poly match, listed for the ESSTC mats, has been changed from March 6 to Saturday, March 13.

Blue Mountain League Certain Of Six Entries

Six teams are certain of campaigning in the Blue Mountain Baseball League, it was announced last night following a meeting of the circuit at the George N. Kemp American Legion Post.

The six certain starters are Pocono A. C., Bath, Martins Creek, Portland, Tatamy and Stockertown. All have presented their franchise fees to Armon Williams, secretary-treasurer of the league.

Johnsonville and Roseto remain the only uncertain teams in the fold. If both of these clubs agree to operate this season, the circuit will function as a four-team loop. Both clubs have scheduled meetings for Thursday to decide whether or not they will operate.

Bill Frear, manager of Pocono A. C., suggested that the league be represented at both the Johnsonville and Roseto meetings on Thursday.

Williams agreed to attend the Johnsonville gathering, while Fred Tedesco, vice president of the circuit, will attend the Roseto gathering.

Two Schedules

It was agreed to draw up both a six and eight-team schedule to cover possible developments. An opening date of Sunday, May 9 was set and the season is scheduled to close on Sunday, August 15.

The league has agreed to play on Memorial Day, but not on Monday, July 5, the date on which Independence Day will be celebrated this year.

A motion was passed for the league to cover secretarial expenses for the various teams. The player situation also came in for a thorough discussion. Bids were also opened for umpires.

It was agreed that a special meeting should be held on Monday, March 8, at the Marconi Club, in Roseto. New player contracts will be presented at this gathering.

The next regular meeting of the league will be held on Monday, March 29, at Ockie's Hotel, in Johnsonville.

the second, during which time the visiting five built a 24-11 advantage.

West End was only three points off the pace at the end of the opening round, 22-19, but the home forces fell behind at halftime, 46-30.

Second half play was on an even keel, with West End holding a slim 20-18 edge in the third round, while the Harmony Five made certain of victory with a strong 28-22 showing in the home stretch.

Harry Possinger, late of Chestnut Hill High fame, scored 31 points in a losing cause, to bring his two-game total to 71 in the circuit.

John Feddock, Harmony forward, also continued to score with ease, as he paced his forces to victory with 36 tallies. Feddock has tallied 76 points in his two most recent outings.

When Crowe's Insurance dropped four points to Bethlehem's Central Bowling Academy on Saturday, it was only the second time this season that the East Stroudsburg keggers lost a Delaware Valley League match by that score. What made the defeat doubly tough was the fact that Crowe's club rolled a 1018 second game, only to be outscored as the Central Academy came up with a 1065 count.

Of the 10 keggers taking part in the second game of the DVI match, seven bettered the 200 mark. The loss dropped the Insurancemen into second place, one game behind Norton Oil. Norton's five won three points from the Fleas Club to regain the top perch. According to reports Dick Andress and Jack Darr had a chance to go 30 or 40 pins higher in the much talked about second game, but Lady Luck failed to favor them with a wave of her magic wand.

Darr hit a 237 in the second tussle and Andress came up with a 225. Darr rolled a 610 match and is still very much in the thick of the high average race. The Delaware Valley League bowling banquet will be held at the Phillipsburg Elks club this year, on Saturday, May 1. This date is a week later than usual. The delay is due to the fact that the Phillipsburg bowlers will be taking part in the National Elks Tournament in Toledo, O., the previous week.

Barrett High School is planning a bowling league among its students. Bangor TV is currently riding along in a ninth place tie in the East Penn League, with nine victories and 15 defeats. The Bangor team has an average of 971.17 at the present time. Second place Allentown Majors sliced Lehigh's second half lead to two games, after six weeks of campaigning. Lehigh now has a mark of 22-2, while the Allentown Majors are close behind with a 20-4 tabulation.

George's Shoes rolled the high match total in the first half of the Stroud Ladies' League, with a 216 mark. Second place went to Penn-Dell, 2134, and Bachman Oil was third with a 2113 mark. George's Shoes also came up with the high single game of 825. Bachman Oil was next on the strength of a 758 and Eleanor's Booterie came in third with a 756 game.

Cora Martin rolled a high match score of 530, while Frances Heckman was next with a 502 and Margaret Gody was next in line with a 498. Sara Williams hit the high single game of 205, while Mary German was next with a 201 and Janet Rodenbaugh was third in this department with a 196 showing. Jean Treible rolled the highest number of strikes by any individual in the first half.

Jean also had a big night in a recent rolling of the Twin-Boro Ladies' League, when she came up with a 202 single and a 581 match. The Bangor Bowling Association announced last weekend that it will sponsor a handicap tournament for State Belt bowlers the week of March 8 to 14. Entries are now being accepted. Deadline for entry is March 3, or next Monday.

ESSTC Cagers Invade Lock Haven Court

East Stroudsburg State Teachers College will go in search of its second straight and fifth favorable basketball decision of the season tonight, when the Warriors tangle with Lock Haven, on the latter's home court.

Only the Normal Hill varsity cagers will make the trip and the contest will get underway at approximately 8:15 p.m.

Lock Haven, like the Warriors, has had its ups-and-downs all season and defeats outnumber victories. The Bald Eagles got off to a very slow start, but have picked up steam in recent outings.

The Warriors, coached by Chris Denis, have lost 10 contests. Two of the defeats have been handed out by Millersville and West Chester, while singletons have been inflicted by the University of Scranton, Panzer, Trenton, Montclair, Wilkes and Cheyney.

ESSTC owns victories over Wilkes, Paterson, Trenton and Kutztown.

Wind Gap Man Charged With Stealing Car

Willard Kresge, 32 Wind Gap, was arrested near Sciota yesterday afternoon on a charge of larceny of a motor vehicle.

The arrest was by Officer Travis J. Seese of East Stroudsburg, on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace Herbert G. Bonser, East Stroudsburg. The information was filed by Alvin J. Newell, 24, of Saylorsburg, who claimed that Kresge had taken his truck without consent.

Kresge was committed to the county jail pending arraignment.

Bigger Licenses

Hartford, Conn. (AP) — Automobile license numbers are getting bigger in Connecticut. Four digits used in combination with letters did the trick until recently. All possible combinations have been exhausted, however, and the state has had to go to five digits.

Polio Experts Question G.G. Effectiveness

"The committee's report on the use of G.G. in mass inoculation states that since such a small amount of it was used in this way at the proper time and in the proper amount, there was not enough information to permit the committee to conclude whether or not G.G. had an effect in preventing or alleviating the disease when used in this way."

"This means that the use of G.G. in mass inoculation last summer in no way affects the validity of the original control experiment conducted by a grantee of the National Foundation in 1951 and 1952, which indicated that when G. G. was given in mass inoculation at the proper time and in the proper amount, to children in the most susceptible age group, the results were 80 per cent effective for a limited period of time."

"The validity of that experiment has not been challenged by the report of the committee on the use of G. G. last summer."

Dr. David Price of the U. S. Public Health Service, when informed of O'Connor's statement, said O'Connor was "incorrect" in saying that the committee's report had pointed to a "small amount" of G.G. being used in mass inoculating programs last summer.

Price declared that all the committee had said was that in most instances, in such "mass" programs, the inoculations were given after the peak of the epidemic had passed.

"I'm sure," Dr. Price told a reporter, "that if the material had a really dramatic effect, the amount of experience we had with it last summer would have shown a protective effect when used in mass inoculation. But, even the experiments previously conducted under National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis grant certainly did not indicate that it (gamma globulin) had a very dramatic effect."

The committee, including some of the nation's foremost researchers on polio, examined data procured among the approximately 185,000 children receiving "G.G." in "mass" injection programs in 23 epidemic areas in 13 states, and among some of those people who received it because they were household or other close contacts of the approximately 40,000 persons stricken with polio during last year's outbreak.

Those two systems of using the material were followed under a procedure in which the blood derivative—in scarce supply at that, at least—was rigidly rationed under an allocation system controlled by the U. S. Office of Defense Mobilization. Distribution was the responsibility of the Public Health Service, and use of the material was supervised by state and local health officers.

Last summer's first large-scale use of the material against polio was undertaken after Dr. William McD. Hammon of the University of Pittsburgh, and a group of associates had reported that field tests in Utah, Texas and Iowa indicated that gamma globulin offered "marked protection" against paralytic polio, although on a temporary basis. Their research was supported by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis. Dr. Hammon was also one of the committee which evaluated the use of "G.G." in last summer's outbreak.

Accused Woman To Undergo Test

Cumberland, Md. (AP) — Mrs. Shirley Alice Rephann, 23-year-old mother charged with murder in the drowning of her four-month-old baby, was committed to Spring Grove State Hospital over the weekend for further observation.

State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher said Mrs. Rephann was taken to the hospital Saturday and would remain there "for an indefinite period of time or until her mental capacity is determined by doctors."

The baby was found Feb. 11 in a half-filled bathtub at the Rep-

Shoppers Celebrate Holiday By Storming New York, Washington Stores For Bargains

New York (AP) — A wild mob of 10,000 shoppers rioted on 14th St. yesterday, storming Hearn's big department store in a savage quest for holiday bargains. Flats flew, windows were smashed, women were trampled underfoot.

Unheeded were cries for mercy from people trapped in the rush. Lost children huddled in terror, their thin wails of bewilderment drowned in the angry, selfish din of the bargain-crazed mob.

At least a dozen persons fainted or were injured as they risked their lives for such marked down items as $6.95 television sets and 29-cent umbrellas.

Shoppers began lining up Sunday night. The early birds were trapped in the store by latecomers, who burst police lines to shout, scream and elbow their way inside. Hats and even shoes were torn from women in the dangerous scramble.

Smaller mobs also stormed Klein's department store a block away and Hearn's uptown store in the Bronx. Windows there also were smashed in the wildest shopping since the door-mashing 1951 price war between Macy's and Gimbel's.

The idea of Washington's Birthday sales originated 30 years ago in Washington, where government employees have the day off from work and are attracted to bargain counters. It was the first time New York's big stores had tried the idea.

Hearn's president said it was the biggest volume sales day in the store's history, surpassing even the greatest of Christmas shopping events.

Residents of Washington, meanwhile, staged their biggest shopping spree since the holiday sales were inaugurated. Although the mobs there were more orderly, at least one store door was shattered.

Washington bargains included a 1941 Nash sedan for 99 cents, TV sets at the same price.

Kremlin Poses Threat Of War, Says Ridgway

Santa Fe, N. M. (AP) — A "handful of evil men" in the Kremlin have posed a threat to America which could mean all-out war, and this threat could continue indefinitely, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway said yesterday.

Ridgway, the Army chief of staff, addressed the opening session of the annual conference of the Adjutants General Assn. of the United States.

"There exists today a massive and menacing threat to all these values of human dignity and individual freedom that are the very foundation stones upon which not only our nation but all freedom loving nations are built," Ridgway said in a prepared talk.

"Because of its vast military strength in being, and because of the absolute control exercised over that strength by a handful of evil men who scheme our destruction, the threat which faces us is one which can ignite with little warning, and flame quickly into all-out war. Such war could come simultaneously in widely separated areas of the world. It could strike at the very heart of our own territory."

"This threat, moreover, has the capability of continuing without change over an extended period of time. There is a timelessness in Communist scheming which we can ignore only at our deadly peril."

Ridgway said this threat, with its immediate and long range implications, poses special defense problems. The nation must be ready with effective counteraction at any outbreak of hostilities. It is not proposed to achieve this by maintaining a huge active force in being, he said.

"The Army must achieve still greater heights in quality of performance. With reduced numbers, the Army must bend every effort to the achievement of increased hitting power per man."

Soviets Claim Red Military Capable Of Crushing 'Enemy'

London (AP) — Russians celebrating the 36th anniversary of the Soviet army and navy heard claims yesterday that Soviet fighting power has been increased of late and now can "deliver a crushing blow upon any enemy." Communist China's chief Mao Tse-tung sent congratulations to Premier Georgi Malenkov.

Moscow radio said speeches, mass sporting events and special meetings throughout the country marked one of the biggest Army-Navy Day celebrations ever held in the Soviet Union. It was the first time Moscow radio has broadcast the annual affair.

The broadcast, heard here, quoted the unnamed chairman of a meeting at the Central Theater of the Soviet army as saying:

"The fighting power of our armed forces has increased of late. At present, our armed forces are strong enough to cool down those hotheads who have lost their senses and who might try to encroach upon our independence."

"Our armed forces are in the position to deliver a crushing blow upon the enemy . . . the Soviet government is taking every step to maintain normal relations with capitalist states in order that all Soviet people can continue their peaceful work."

"The might of our army constitutes the guarantee that the peaceful work of our people will continue. Any further enemy knows this."

In addition to the congratulations from Red China's boss, Peiping radio said Communist Chinese Premier and Foreign Minister Chou En-lai cabled "warmest greetings" to Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov.

Gen. Chu Teh, commander-in-chief of the Chinese army, sent his congratulations to Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, Soviet defense minister.

Mao's message to Malenkov said: "May the glorious Soviet army grow increasingly powerful in the cause of consolidating and defending world peace."

Chu said his Red Chinese forces "take unparalleled pride to stand alongside the powerful and invincible Soviet Army at the forefront of the defense of peace in the Far East and the rest of the world."

Billy Graham Quits Up roar

London (AP) — The uproar over an anti-Socialist advertisement for Billy Graham's coming religious crusade of Britain subsided somewhat yesterday after the American evangelist promised to talk things over with riled British Laborites. Graham says he was attacking secularism, not socialism.

Geoffrey de Freitas, a Labor member of Parliament, announced in a statement that he was withdrawing a parliamentary demand for a church-government discussion of Graham's scheduled three-month revival campaign here. The evangelist is aboard the liner United States, due in Southampton, England, today.

East Hartford, Conn. (AP) — Police got a call that a man was chasing a woman along a street. The time was 3 a. m. The investigating patrolman reported that it was a husband chasing his wife because she refused to cook his breakfast at that hour.

Red Cross Announces Quotas For Annual Rolcall Campaign

Drive Opens March 1 With $13,300 Goal

The 1954 Red Cross Campaign for members and funds will be launched in Monroe County, as in the rest of the nation, on March 1. J. Richard Altomose, county chairman of the 1954 campaign, yesterday announced that this year the county's quota will be $13,300.

He and the campaign committee have been working for the past month in lining up captains and workers in every section of the county. Now serving as campaign chairman for the first time, Mr. Altomose has been favorably impressed with the response for volunteers in the campaign, he said.

"The answer I'll be glad to help in Red Cross' has been so universal, that I'm convinced that this campaign will be a success," he said. "In this county the spirit and philosophy of the Red Cross, 'People Helping People,' has been put into action, and the people are responding."

"This is particularly important this year when the emphasis will be on membership and the importance of every adult receiving a personal invitation to join the Red Cross and by his individual contribution to support the local, national and international programs of the organization."

The county-wide quota has been broken down into quotas for each district, Mr. Altomose said, and the emphasis will be on a quick and thorough canvass of each neighborhood. A scoreboard of returns from the various districts will be published from time to time to show progress in the campaign.

The districts and their quotas are as follows: Stroudsburg, $4,500; East Stroudsburg, $2,300; Barrett, $2,200; Chestnut Hill, $300; Coolbaugh, $200; Delaware Water Gap, $200; Eldred, $200; Hamilton, $275; Jackson, $140; Middle Smithfield, $200; Mount Pocono, $250; Paradise, $225; Pocono, $350; Polk, $100; Ross, $135; Smithfield, $700; Stroud, $800; Tobyhanna, $200; and Tunkhannock, $25.

Altomose has been assisted in planning the campaign and in recruiting captains in the various districts by an active committee.

Working with him have been Fred Rhodes, Carl Secor, LeRoy Mikes, Mrs. Homer Shupp, Jacob Altomose, Detlef Hansen, Mrs. Adan Bohner, Walter Dreher, John Lits, Walter Sebring, Jack Shinn, Mrs. William Roulette, Mrs. Horace Westbrook, William Hahn, Lew Leffler, Nelson Westbrook, Mrs. Ambrose Altomose, Mrs. Nelson Westbrook, and the chapter chairman Arlington W. Williams and the executive secretary, Mrs. Ida E. Kunkle.

The list of captains is practically complete, Altomose said, and many of the captains are already securing their workers, ready to begin work on March 1.

Although no membership quota has been established for the counties, the National Red Cross is asking each chapter to increase the number of members by 50 per cent in order to reach the goal of 30,000,000 members. The national fund goal is $85,000,000 with by far the greater share remaining with the individual chapters for their own use in helping in local situations.

The National Red Cross share of the contributions will go to support nation-wide projects with services to the armed forces and veterans accounting for almost half the national goal. The Red Cross National Blood program, disaster preparedness and relief, the health, nursing and safety services, the Junior Red Cross, and service and financial assistance to chapters are also major items in the national budget.

On the local level, Monroe County translates these projects in terms of neighborhood needs through the services of active volunteers and the local share of the fund. The slogan is "Answer the Call—Join and Serve."

Three Men Trap Limit Of Beavers

Three veteran beaver trappers concluded their annual contest in nip-and-tuck fashion yesterday, each catching their limit of four in the first six days of the season.

George Fenical Jr., of Echo Lake and Harry McClintock and Foster Ladlee, both of East Stroudsburg, started the contest eight years ago. Each year after studying the habits and traits of the beaver they became more skillful, and their trapping improved.

This season which opened Feb. 15 proved the best yet, they report. In spite of some unpleasant experiences—falls through melted ice into lake waters, and slushing around in Sunday's heavy rain—they overcame the odds to conclude a good year.

Russia Tries To Kill EDC By Delays

By J. M. Roberts Jr.

Associated Press News Analyst
Post-conference reports from Berlin indicate that if Russian talk of peace in Asia can forestall creation of the European Defense Community until after the Geneva conference, then she will be ready with new bait in her delaying action.

Russian tactics have been going like this:
She started talking about the possibilities of a negotiated peace. France, seeking some alternative to a renewed Germany and surrender of national sovereignty over the major part of her own armed forces, was intrigued.

The Allies proposed a conference to settle German problems. Russia refused the terms. France decided she might as well go ahead with EDC. Russia reversed her field and okayed the Berlin conference.

But Russia wouldn't agree even to the initial steps of a settlement, revealing, instead, a determination to keep her advanced military bases in Europe. France prepared to put EDC to a vote in March.

Russia said well, we can't make peace in Europe, but we could in Asia. Let's have a Korean peace conference in April, and after that, see what we can do about Indochina.

France doesn't want to make Russia mad about EDC if there's a possibility of doing anything about Indochina. So Russia may succeed in holding off EDC until after the Geneva conference.

There isn't a ghost of a chance that Geneva will produce any more peace than Berlin did. But Geneva can probably be strung out a great deal longer.

Now, the Berlin reports indicate, Russia is already laying the groundwork for what she can do when Geneva finally closes down.

Russian and satellite secondstringers did a lot of talk with Allied second-stringers at Berlin about how Malenkov would like to confer with Churchill and Eisenhower. Churchill has been wanting that for a long time. France, of course, would be rung in.

Something could come of it, said the idea-planters. Maybe peace. Malenkov has a lot of things to do at home which would be aided by easing of tensions.

In the meantime, Russia brags, she's ready to knock the ears off anybody who interferes with her.

She has, she says, a really rough and ready military establishment. It is easy to draw the inference that the longer she can delay EDC, or if she might actually "negotiate" it to death, the rougher and readier she would be, relatively.
